ACADEMIC PROJECTS

SUBSCRIPTLY - USER INTERFACE DESIGN/PROTOTYPING

(Web Application, Interface Design Course, 2015)

<http://theinikai.com/subscriptly.html>

A web service to help people track their subscriptions by tracking their credit cards, stay alert to deadlines, and get a clear view of their overall spending. I contributed to ideation and worked closely with my team to conduct user research, design user flows and create interactive prototypes.

BEN&JERRYS - BUSINESS STRATEGY/USER EXPERIENCE

(Website, Interactive Objects and Environments Course, 2016)

<http://theinikai.com/benjerrys.html>

A redesigned immersive web experience and new native e-commerce platform for Ben & Jerry's. My role was finding key insights and gaps for intervention within the business model and user journey framework. Working closely within a team of five other designers, I helped iterate through various experience design models and created high fidelity prototypes of the interface. I created a visual guide for the interface to assure the branding of Ben & Jerry's is conserved.

MAISON BIRKS - STRATEGY/USER INTERFACE

(Web and Mobile Site, Interactive Objects and Environments Course, 2016)

<http://theinikai.com/birks.html>

A redesigned web and shopping experience featuring social selling for back-end, affluent millennials in order for them to connect with Birk's brand and product values. The end goal is to increased perceived value of Birks' brand/products and establish a more sustainable market for the future, such that Birks is not left behind during the jewelry industry's massive market shift.
