

amuse
by iStock

A real-time on-screen display reflects the estimated selling price of what the lens is pointing at based on current market demands: factors that may affect the price include composition, number of people in the photo, the demographic and gender of people in the photo, etc.